

Meet the 2018-2019 ADFM Fellows

The ADFM Fellowship is a year-long program (February to February) which provides academic leadership development for those interested in being a chair or considering that as a potential career direction. The program includes a Fellowship project, shared with colleagues through a venue at the ADFM Winter meeting; formal mentorship from a Fellowship Advisor; and participation on the ADFM Chairs' listserv during the Fellowship year and one year thereafter. It also includes participation in two back-to-back ADFM Winter meetings and some extra programming, such as a Fellowship Workshop; an in-person New Chairs' and Fellows' Fall Workshop; and webinars throughout the year.

New for the fellowship program this year is that Amanda Weidner, MPH, ADFM Data & Special Projects Manager will be taking on the role of staff contact for the Fellowship Program. We hope this will help streamline communications and maximize opportunities for our fellows!

Myra Muramoto, MD, MPH, ADFM Fellowship Director, and the ADFM Executive Committee are pleased to announce the 2018-2019 class of ADFM Fellows.

AARON D. CLARK, DO

Fellowship project: Social Determinants of Health: Identifying and addressing barriers to care

Fellowship advisor: Philip Zazove, MD

Dr. Clark has been a practicing family physician since 2003. He graduated from Ohio University Heritage College of Osteopathic Medicine in Athens, Ohio and completed his residency in family medicine at Firelands hospital in Sandusky, Ohio where he served as chief resident. He also completed a fellowship in health policy training through the New York Institute of Technology in Long Island, New York. In addition to serving as the Chief Clinical Officer for a Columbus, Ohio based federally qualified health center, PrimaryOne Health, he also is an Associate Clinical Professor of Family Medicine at The Ohio State University where he serves as vice chair of community health for the department of family medicine. He is married with three children ages 14, 18 and 20. He enjoys hiking, skiing, fly fishing and sporting clays.

COLLEEN T. FOGARTY, MD, MSC.

Fellowship project: Improving the joy in practice of academic family physicians through decreased documentation burden

Fellowship advisor: Alison Dobie, MD

Dr. Fogarty is the Associate Chair for Interprofessional Practice and Education, and Medical Director at Highland Family Medicine with the University of Rochester/Highland Hospital Department of Family Medicine. She completed a Bachelors of Arts degree in Chemistry at Cornell University, and earned her medical degree at the University of Connecticut, School of Medicine. She completed her family medicine residency and chief residency at the University of Rochester. Dr. Fogarty has additional training in Family Systems from the University of Rochester and a Master of Science in Epidemiology and Biostatistics from the Boston University School of Public Health. She has spent much of her career in community health center practice, both rural and urban.

Dr. Fogarty's publication record includes both empirical and creative work. Her scholarship includes work in primary care identification and management of mental health conditions, intimate partner violence, clinical communication skills while using the electronic health record, and cultural humility training. Dr. Fogarty's creative academic writing includes narrative, poetry, and 55-word stories, which have been published in several journals. She has received creative writing awards from the University of Rochester Cluster on Human Values in Healthcare and the Family Medicine Education Consortium.

She practices and teaches writing 55-word stories with colleagues and residents, and has edited the 55-word story column for the journal Families, Systems, and Health. She serves as Assistant Editor for the journal Family Medicine. Dr. Fogarty was named co-editor (with Larry Mauksch) of the journal, Families, Systems, and Health in 2013.

MASAHITO JIMBO, MD, PHD, MPH

Fellowship project: Creating a vision for meaningful clinical track faculty development within the Department of Medicine at the University of Michigan

Fellowship advisor: Dan Knight, MD

Dr. Jimbo is a native of Japan and obtained his MD from Keio University School of Medicine in Tokyo, Japan. After completing a residency in Internal Medicine and a fellowship in Nephrology with PhD at the same institution, he moved to the United States and finished a residency in Family Medicine at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia in 1996. After practicing for three years in rural North Carolina, where he also received his MPH through one of the first distant-learning public health leadership programs at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, he returned to Thomas Jefferson University as a faculty for five years before being recruited to the University of Michigan in 2004, where he is currently Professor of Family Medicine and Urology.

Having trained in two primary care specialties and practicing in urban, urban underserved, suburban, semirural, and rural underserved areas in two culturally distinct countries, Dr. Jimbo easily straddles the medical communities of the United States and Japan and has extensive knowledge of important issues that affect primary care in both countries. In addition to his MPH training, he received additional expertise in behavioral intervention and research through hands-on research on patient and physician-targeted behavioral interventions at Thomas Jefferson University. This has led him to a successful research career with multiple grants, including a R01 from the National Cancer Institute. More recently, Dr. Jimbo has pursued greater leadership roles within the department. In addition to the Chief of University Family Medicine Inpatient Service which he has led since 2010, he has been selected in 2017 as the inaugural Director of Faculty Development.

Like us on Facebook

or follow us on Twitter
@AssnDeptsFamMed

GEMMA KIM, MD

Fellowship project: Initiation of a Listserv within the Department of Family Medicine in a Growing Academic Institution

Fellowship advisor: Valerie Gilchrist, MD

Dr. Gemma Kim, M.D., joined the University of California, Riverside School of Medicine in March 2013 and is currently the Vice-Chair of family medicine and the founding program director of the UCR School of Medicine Family Medicine Residency Program. She is board certified by the American Board of Family Medicine and is a member of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the California Academy of Family Physicians, and the Riverside County Medical Association. Dr. Kim completed her family medicine residency training at Texas A&M Health Science Center College of Medicine – Scott & White Memorial Hospital and was chief resident of her class. She stayed on as senior staff and was an associate program director for the Texas A&M HSC College of Medicine-Scott & White Hospital Family Medicine Residency Program for 5 years.

Dr. Kim remains active in both undergraduate and graduate medical education. Her professional interests include academic medicine, health maintenance, preventative medicine, women's health, chronic disease management, and outpatient procedures. She is committed to train the next generation of physicians to serve their communities with social responsibility and go on to become culturally diverse leaders in the community to improve health, promote wellness, and improve access to healthcare.

SHANNON PITTMAN, MD

Fellowship project: The Art of Spinning Plates

Fellowship advisor: Mary Jo Welker, MD

Dr. Pittman is a tenured, Professor and Chair in the department of Family Medicine. She received her undergraduate degree from Tougaloo College and earned her M.D. at the University Of Mississippi School Of Medicine where she also completed her Family Medicine residency in 2005. She served as Chief Resident from 2004-2005 and was awarded the George Lally Bevill Memorial Fellowship in Family Medicine.

Dr. Pittman is a member of the American Academy of Family Medicine, the American Medical Association, the Society of Teachers for Family Medicine, and the Mississippi Academy of Family Medicine. Dr. Pittman completed a faculty development fellowship in Waco, TX in April 2006 and the National Institute for Program Directors Development (NIPDD) fellowship in 2007. She currently is a member of the Academic Council with NIPDD. Dr. Pittman has also served as the medical director for University Physicians, Family Medicine since 2010 and is a certified Physician Builder in Epic.

Dr. Pittman is passionate about learning and patient care. She is advocate for quality, being the recipient of the prestigious Q award. Dr. Pittman enjoys the academic pursuit of excellence and thrives on creativity and innovation.

PHIL RODGERS, MD

Fellowship project: Developing Outpatient Specialty Palliative Care Services within an Academic Health System Patient-Centered Medical Home (PCMH) Practice

Fellowship advisor: Kevin Grumbach, MD

Phil Rodgers is an Associate Professor of Family Medicine at the University Michigan, where he was appointed in 1998 following his residency training there. He practices and teaches full-spectrum family medicine, including inpatient adult medicine, and subspecialty palliative medicine. He has served in numerous departmental and institutional leadership roles, including elected positions on both the University Hospital and Medical School Executive Committees. He is also founding director of the UM Palliative Care Program, served as founding associate director of the UM Palliative Medicine Fellowship Program, and currently serves as director of Adult Palliative Care Clinical Programs.

Dr. Rodgers has become a leading national expert in payment and care delivery innovation in palliative care, and has received numerous invitations to speak, contribute to panels and workgroups, and provide technical expertise to policymakers including the Center of Healthcare Research and Transformation (CHRT), the Michigan Primary Care Transformation Project (MiPCT), the National Academies of Science, Engineering and Medicine (NASEM), and the Pew Charitable Trusts. His work has been recognized by numerous awards including the University of Michigan Family Medicine Resident Teaching Award, the University of Michigan Dean's Award for Community Service, the Cambia Health Foundation Sojourns Leadership Award, and the American Academy of Hospice and Palliative Medicine Distinguished Service Award.

Have you seen the commentary in the Jan/Feb edition of the Annals of Family Medicine?

Check it out:

A Shared Aim for Student Choice of Family Medicine: An Update from ADFM and Family Medicine for America's Health

All Annals of Family Medicine commentaries from ADFM are archived on our website, at <http://www.adfammed.org/Commentaries>

NOTABLES & MILESTONES

(send Amanda Weidner your "notables & milestones" at aweidner@adfm.org)

Laura Mosqueda, MD, Chair at the Keck School of Medicine of USC was named Interim Dean in October.

~~~

Congratulations to Mack Ruffin IV, MD, MPH, current chair at Penn State Hershey Medical Center, who won the STFM Curtis G. Hames research award for 2017!

~~~